Poor People start tedious march up

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The late Dr. Martin Luther King's Poor People's March on Washington got off to a slow, creaking start Thursday—starting at the point where a sniper killed him April 4.

"The moment has come," the Rev. Ralph Abernathy told the crowd gathered for the memorial service. "The days of weeping are ended. The days of march have begun."

Led by a battered old wagon hauled by two top-cared mules, the some 400 who joined the symbolic 2½-mile march through a slum area walked eight abreast under a hot sun.

Lunches, cold drinks and portable restrooms awaited them at the line of buses chartered to carry many of them on to Marks—70 miles to the south in Mississippi's flat, freshly green Delta.

Southern Christian Leadership Conference spokesmen said those who make the trip will camp in Marks for two days—fanning out to recruit new marchers from Negroes in the area.

Dr. King's widow, a trim dignified figure in mourning black, spoke at the somber memorial service that preceded the march. The rolling cadence of her voice was oddly reminiscent of her husband's renowned oratorical style.

"On this spot where my husband gave his life for love and service to humanity, I pledge my loyalty and devotion to the work which he so nobly began," she said.

Mrs. King stood on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel, an angular, modernistic structure, looking down on the intent crowd—and on across the street, through the green screen of wild mulberry trees, to the window where the sniper lay in wait to kill her husband.

Two officers, armed with rifles, stood looking out the window where the sniper had stood before firing the shot that, in addition to killing Dr. King, triggered violent reaction in several cities that claimed other lives.

Abernathy, wearing blue denim instead of sober preacher's garb, told the crowd the Poor People's March will not exclude any color of people.

"We're not going to have white power or black power," he cried. "We're going to have poor power."

Dr. King envisioned the Poor People's Campaign and March on Washington to point up the plight of the nation's needy and underprivileged.

Israel displays military might

JERUSALEM (AP) — The might of Zion-Soviet-made arms seized from the Arabs and planes and guns bought in the United States and France—sped across captured Jerusalem Thursday in an Israeli celebration of 20 years of statehood that defied the United Nations and the Arab world.

Under a burning sun, 4,500 troops and 450 vehicles crunched along a five-mile parade route that led through an Arab quarter held by Jordan until the Middle East war last June and into a traditionally Jewish area.

Some 250,000 Israelis and visitors cheered as 300 planes screamed overhead. American-built Skyhawk fighter-bombers led a formation that included a Soviet MIG21, delivered to Israel by an Iraqi defector. French Magister jets looped through the skies, leaving blue and white vapor trails that formed a Star of David.

The parade, denounced last week by the United Nations Security Council as a blow to Middle East peace, caused angry demonstrations in Lebanon and Syria. But Jerusalem's Arabs were quiet and threat of terrorism by the Al Fatah guerrilla organization did not materialize.

For 75 minutes, men and women soldiers and armament sped past a reviewing stand where Prime Minister Levi Eshkol, President Zalman Shazar and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan received salutes.

Veep in kissing mood

HHH invades Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I wish you good luck" said 13-year-old Tina Scott to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Thursday on his first campaign visit to Philadelphia for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Humphrey beamed, then leaned over and kissed the little Negro girl on the cheek.

Tina and two of her schoolmates were at International Airport to greet the vice president. They presented him with a picture of a plaque that will be placed in the Tilden Middle School's Hubert H. Humphrey instructional materials center.

Humphrey said, "You couldn't make me happier if we had Christmas every day." Then he also kissed 11-year-old Theresa Elzy and shook the hand of Anthony Anselmo, also 11.

"I don't go around kissing boys, you know," Humphrey told Tony.

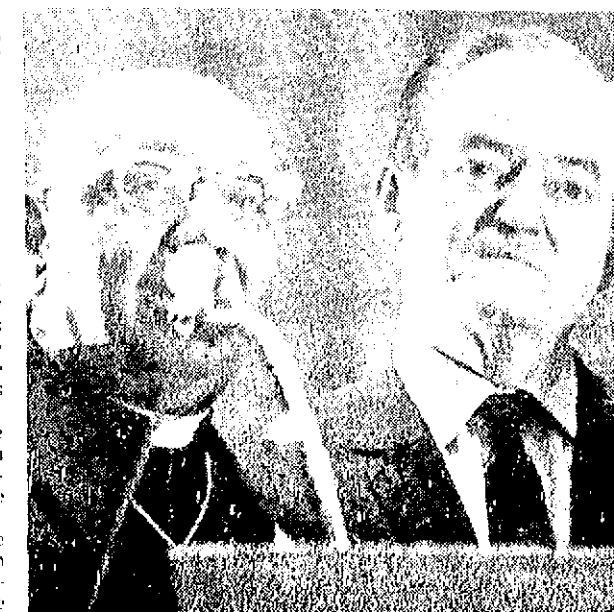

Humphrey was in the nation's fourth largest city, a major Democratic urban stronghold, to address the 38 quadrennial session of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, which claims two million members in the United States, South America and Africa.

At the airport he was welcomed by Philadelphia Mayor James H. J. Tate, reported to be favorable to Humphrey's candidacy. Also present were Philadelphia's five Democratic Congressmen—city Democrat U.S. chairman William J. Green, Joshua Ellberg, James Byrne, Robert N. C. Nix, and William Barrett—and U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa.

Humphrey started off by praising Tate as "one of the really great mayors in the nation." He said he was here this time not to speak on behalf of the Johnson Administration "but for myself."

He apologized for arriving an hour late to a crowd estimated by Police Commissioner Frank L. Rizzo to be 6,000 but which looked more like 1,500 including 500 school children and 200 policemen. He said his wife had undergone surgery in the morning and "I did not want to leave until I knew she was safe and in good hands."

Humphrey said that he planned to "have a happy day in Philadelphia because this city has always been kind to me."

Phone union wins hike

Bell strike in state drags on

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Negotiations aimed at settling a strike by 13,000 Bell Telephone Co. workers were interrupted Thursday when 20 pickets were jailed here for violating a ban on mass picketing.

The Federation of Telephone from Thursday's scheduled talks while the fate of the jailed men was discussed.

The men were sentenced to 90 days in jail by Judge Edward J. Griffiths for violating a local injunction obtained by Bell forbidding mass picketing.

Later Thursday, Bell spokesman Francis Gill said talks were scheduled to resume at 1:30 p.m. Friday after Judge Griffiths announced he would keep the men in jail "at least overnight" for violating the order.

Gill said a new hearing on the injunction was scheduled for early Friday morning.

The federation struck last April 26 under a wage-reopener clause at the midway point of a three-year contract.

Meanwhile Thursday, Bell started talks with another union, the Pennsylvania Telephone Guild, which represents 2,600 business office, marketing, coin telephone and directory department employees.

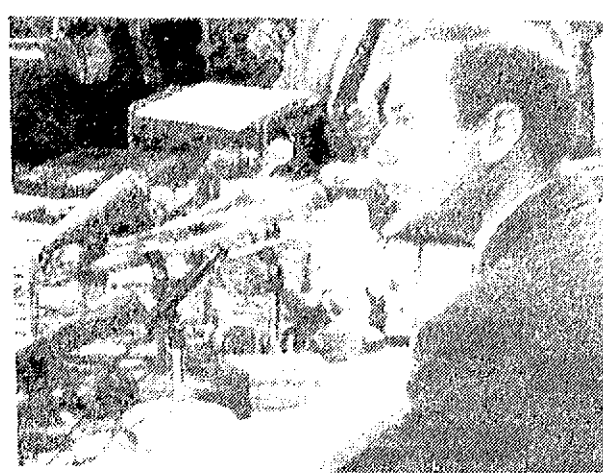

And in Washington the Communications Workers of America and Western Electric Co., a Bell sister company, announced tentative Thursday contract approval on a new nationwide contract. Bell spokesmen said they hope the approval will help end the strike in Pennsylvania in view of the federation strike.

Bell has obtained injunctions banning mass picketing by federation and CWA members.

The federation said Thursday its lawyers are attempting to have an Allegheny County Injunction remain "in effect only so long as Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania does not employ persons, or transfer employees to perform the duties of those now or hereafter not working because of a labor dispute."

The guild is opening negotiation sessions with Bell under a wage reopener deadline of May 8.

Richard Conwell, Guild president, said earlier however the guild will ask Bell to scrap the wage reopener clause and start bargaining on a new contract, include wage and fringe benefits.

Man given new heart

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Joseph Rizer, a stocky 40-year-old Salinas, Calif., carpenter, received a new heart Thursday. Stanford University Medical Center said his condition was "fair" after 4½ hours of surgery.

Rizer is the eighth person in the world to receive a human heart transplant. His was the second at Stanford where Dr. Norman E. Shumway and a team of heart specialists performed both operations.

The donor of Rizer's new heart was a 43-year-old man who died of brain damage which doctors said was irreversible. The donor's family asked that his name not be revealed.

There was no immediate word on how the donor suffered the brain damage.

Shumway said that Rizer was getting artificial respiration after the surgery.

The family physician of the dark haired carpenter had referred him to Stanford in March so that the Shumway team could consider replacing his diseased heart. He had suffered a serious heart ailment for seven years.

"The next 10½ hours are critical," hospital physicians said after the transplant.

A spokesman added, however, that unless a drastic change occurs, the next report on Rizer's condition would be at 10:30 a.m. PDT Friday.

Rizer's wife Eileen was interviewed before the transplant surgery that lasted from 7:30 a.m. until noon.

"I never entered my mind that Joe would be selected for a heart transplant," Mrs. Rizer said.

"I remember his comment how 'I wish that was me' following the first heart transplant by Dr. (Christian) Barnard in South Africa."

"At first I was shocked by the idea, but time and the knowledge of how desperately my husband wanted to undergo the operation has made me realize that this may be his only chance to live."

A Cape Town, South Africa, dentist, Phillip Blaiberg, is the first long-term survivor of such a transplant. He has been discharged from the hospital and is reported doing well at home. His operation was Jan. 2.

The first transplant patient, Louis Washkansky, was operated on Dec. 3 by Barnard. This was followed by a New York infant on Dec. 6 and then the Blaiberg surgery.

Opposition to school aid appears

HARRISBURG (AP) — Opposition to the use of public tax monies to aid religious schools was registered Thursday by the Pennsylvania Council of Churches.

The council's president, the Rev. Kermit L. Lloyd of Bloomsburg, said the organization would support legislation pegged to a program of shared time, or dual enrollment.

Mr. Lloyd said the council's opposition to direct financial aid was based on its belief that tax support for nonpublic schools would encourage the proliferation of the nonpublic school system.

In addition, he said it would permit state funds to go to schools which discriminate on a basis of race, religion or national origin, and would appear to violate both the U.S. and state constitutional prohibitions against financial aid for religious purposes.

Mr. Lloyd said a dual-enrollment or shared-time plan would offer less duplication of facilities, make for better use of public money, and promote inter-group sharing and "much needed integration."

Reuther-Meany fight boiling

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — President Walter P. Reuther of the United Auto Workers Union renewed his fight Thursday with AFL-CIO President George Meany and hinted at pulling the UAW out of the powerful labor federation.

Reuther declared on the eve of the UAW's 21st constitutional convention that if his call for a special AFL-CIO convention is refused, "We could not in good conscience continue to be confined within the restricted limits of an organization ruled by the dead hand of the past."

Free-wheeling hawks again circling Piccadilly Circus

LONDON (AP) — Cleaner air in London is bringing back the birds.

Such rarities as hoopoes, great northern divers, waxwings, bearded tits, house martins and show hunting are on view again after shunning the soot-laden atmosphere of the metropolis for up to a century.

Hawks are seen hunting within a few hundred yards of London's Piccadilly Circus. Ornithologists have spotted rare birds in the park at the rear of Queen Elizabeth's Buckingham Palace.

It's all due to the ban on smoke and other noxious fumes around inner London, says a bird sanctuary report out Thursday.

Britain's Clean Air Act, introduced in 1956, bans smoke-producing fuel from domestic hearths and industrial pollution of the atmosphere. It has made the city's air fit to breathe.

Lord Harcomb, chairman of the British committee on bird sanctuaries, said the purer air resulted in more insects on which the birds feed.

A small colony of house martins was found on houses near Primrose Hill—the first of the species to breed in inner London for nearly 80 years.

Even a rare fish-hunting osprey had been spotted over Regent's Park, Harcomb said.

In some cases—like the Canadian geese in St. James's Park—the increased numbers are becoming embarrassing, he added.

Vote on contract in next few days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Telephone strikers won three-year wage and fringe benefit increases totaling nearly 20 per cent Thursday in 1968's tallest labor contract agreement thus far. It will affect some 600,000 workers across the nation.

The AFL-CIO Communications Workers estimated the settlement will cost the Bell System more than $2 billion and top company officials said it will mean higher bills for many of the nation's 50 million telephone subscribers.

Some 200,000 strikers will vote in the next few days on whether to end their 15-day-old nationwide walkout and accept the agreement, which would set a pattern for most of the 400,000 other Bell System workers whose contracts expire later.

"The new Bell System pattern agreements are big—in every sense," said the union president, Joseph A. Beirne.

The increased costs the settlements impose will inevitably have some effect on the rates our customers pay for services," said Ben S. Gilmer, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., parent firm of the Bell System.

The wage and fringe package increases average 6.5 per cent a year, compared with last year's 5.6 per cent for all major industry contract settlements.

However, larger wage increases are concentrated in the first year of the telephone contracts.

"These wage increases represent by far the largest pay package ever bargained in Communications Workers history with the Bell System," Beirne said.

Improved vacations, holidays and holiday pay, overtime pay, pensions, wage progression scales, medical and life insurance are also included.

"To get all of this it took a strike," Beirne said of the first nationwide telephone walkout in 21 years.

Top pay for telephone installers will rise $34 a week by the third year of the contract, for top plant craftsmen $24 and for switchboard operators and clerks $16, the union said.

Average pay before the agreement was about $154 a week for plant craftsmen and installers, $83 for switchboard operators and $103 for clerical employees.

However, there are a wide range of geographical pay differentials in the Bell System. Top pay for plant craftsmen before the strike ranging from a high of $167.50 a week in New York to a low of $128 in Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Switchboard operators ranged from a high of $142 in northern California to a low of $80 in Southern Bell states.

The union said $22 million of the settlement will go toward raising pay differentials for certain job and geographical classifications.

Top scale plant craftsmen will get pay raises of $12 a week immediately and $6 weekly in each of the second and third years of the contract.

Switchboard operators and clerical workers will get $8 immediately and $4 a week in each of the following two years.

Starting June 1, 1969 minimum pensions will rise from $15 to $125 a month and deductions equivalent to 25 per cent of social security payments will be eliminated.

Hanoi rejects ship site

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Indonesian offer of a shipboard site for preliminary talks on Vietnam was reported sunk Thursday by North Vietnam, leaving unbroken a month-old stalemate between Hanoi and Washington.

In Vientiane, The Associated Press quoted a North Vietnamese embassy spokesman as rejecting Indonesia's offer to send a cruiser to the Tonkin Gulf to serve as a meeting place for U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys charged with determining whether serious peace negotiations are possible.

The word from the Laotian capital killed still another of the fleeting hopes for agreement that have arisen sporadically since Hanoi accepted on April 3 a U.S. suggestion that preliminary talks be held.

The White House had agreed to the Indonesian proposal Wednesday.

The State Department made plain that the U.S. government still objects to the site pushed hardest by the Communists—Warsaw. It reaffirmed an April 11 U.S. statement preferring a neutral site over the capital of Red Poland, a backer of North Vietnam in the war.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said it did not help for "people to push us to take Warsaw."

The U.S. foreign affairs chief, during foreign-aid testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, reported a setback in North Vietnamese infiltration against the South since Johnson cancelled U.S. bombing of the North in his March 31 peace bid.

Accusing the Reds of failing to reciprocate by scaling down their fighting in South Vietnam, Rusk added that if Hanoi persists in efforts to pressure the United States into accepting an unsuitable site, it can only delay the serious business of agreeing on a suitable location which is fair to both sides.

The secretary of state did not specify who besides the Communists may be pressing for U.S. acceptance of Warsaw as the site. But some administration critics in the Senate had urged this in a Foreign Relations Committee session on Wednesday.

Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., was among those who said the United States should agree on Warsaw.

The North Vietnamese embassy spokesman in Vientiane was quoted as saying that Hanoi still is insisting on either Warsaw or Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital.

Columbia makes new concessions

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia University offered new concessions to its campus rebels Thursday, in an effort to end the 10-day battle of Morningside Heights and reopen classrooms for its 25,381 students.

Classes at Columbia have been suspended for a week, with no indication they can be resumed before next week at the earliest.

Nearly all city police were withdrawn during the day from the Ivy League campus in uptown Manhattan's Morningside Heights. They were summoned in force earlier in the week to clear five buildings occupied by student demonstrators. There were 720 arrests in the ensuing melee.

Vietnam army in good showing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The performance of three South Vietnamese Army divisions under a new commander in the Mekong Delta apparently has convinced top U.S. military officials they can dispense with any sizable American troop increases in that key region.

Senior U.S. officers told an interviewer they do not expect any significant increase in U.S. ground forces in the delta. But they do foresee more operations by the American infantry brigade already there.

These high-ranking officers said U.S. advisers report that the delta speak highly of the performance of the South Vietnamese 7th, 9th and 21st divisions.

The reports speak of improved aggressiveness, combat efficiency and morale, it was said.

One U.S. officer, recently back from an inspection of South Vietnamese commands in the delta, said Saigon's army has three "basically good divisions" in the rice-producing area which contains about 40 per cent of South Vietnam's population.

The sources said that while senior U.S. advisers really ran operations in the delta with the tacit approval of the previous South Vietnamese corps commander, the new chief of the delta is now running them by himself.

This man, who took over March 1, is 35-year-old Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Thang, rated one of South Vietnam's brightest and most aggressive military leaders.

"South Vietnamese units have had success in operations against VC (Viet Cong) units," one general said. "They are out in the field and they have taken a lot of weapons and food from the enemy."

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese troops slugged it out Thursday night with strong North Vietnamese forces in the northeast corner of South Vietnam in the heaviest fighting since the enemy's Tet offensive in February.

Casualty reports indicated American and South Vietnamese forces were killing 12 enemy soldiers for every allied soldier killed in the four days of bitter fighting around Dong Ha and Hue.

The allies said enemy casualties since Monday were 1,139 and U.S. and South Vietnamese reported 93 of their men killed and 449 wounded.

Savage fighting was reported Thursday just north of the U.S. Marine base at Dong Ha, 11 miles south of the demilitarized zone between the Vietnams.

A North Vietnamese counterattack pushed back Marines assaulting a bunker complex two miles northeast of the sprawling American base.

U.S. headquarters said the advancing Marine column came under heavy artillery and mortar fire.

South Vietnamese troops were reported heavily engaged 2½ miles north of Dong Ha. AP correspondent Lewis M. Simons said soldiers of the 1st South Vietnamese Division ran into enemy forces dug in on both sides of Route 1, Vietnam's major north-south highway.

Simons said the South Vietnamese had been in "almost steady contact" with the enemy since Monday and the fight was continuing late Thursday night.

The sustained fighting along the DMZ indicated the North Vietnamese had moved in troops to threaten the Dong Ha base, headquarters of the 3rd Marine Division and the anchor for allied outposts along the eastern flank of the demilitarized zone.

There were no fresh reports on the fighting around Hue, the old imperial capital 40 miles southeast of Dong Ha, where allied forces had been battling enemy units for three successive days.

The fighting around Dong Ha overshadowed the allied drive into the A Shau Valley southwest of Hue. Marine Lt. Gen. Robert E. Cushman, commander of U.S. forces in the northern provinces, said the 15,000-man allied force operating in the valley had cut one of the enemy's main supply and infiltration routes from North Vietnam, but "there are still a lot of nooks and crannies we have not looked into."

U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division troops pushed into one pocket of the valley called the Punchbowl against scattered enemy resistance. They uncovered big caches of Communist arms and supplies.

In the first major report to newsmen since Operation Delaware began April 19, Cushman said that up to Tuesday the allied force in the valley had killed 551 North Vietnamese.

He said most of the North Vietnamese in the valley were engineers, security forces and anti-aircraft crews. He noted contact with the enemy had been light for the most part. But he said paratroopers in the northeast sections have found "organized enemy infantry units," and "have had some hard action because this is very tough territory and the enemy is very well dug in."

The 1st Air Cavalry Division had 30 helicopters destroyed or damaged in the first 24 hours of the operation and since then 20 more have been destroyed or damaged by anti-aircraft fire. Enemy guns also downed a $2.5-million C130 cargo plane and a twin-engine observation plane.

Captured enemy equipment included seven 37mm anti-aircraft guns, found for the first time in the war. Cushman said the allied troops also found 844 rifles and pistols, 47 large weapons that require crews to operate them, thousands of rounds of ammunition, one Russian light amphibious tank, two trucks, a jeep and two bulldozers.

In other action around the country, helicopter gunships and tactical aircraft carried out strikes Thursday night only a few miles north of Saigon.

U.S. Air Force B52s bombed targets southwest of Con Thien near the demilitarized zone and southeast of the A Shau Valley.

The weather over North Vietnam was described as overcast Wednesday, holding strike missions by U.S. pilots to 104.

In the weekly casualty report, the U.S. Command said 302 Americans were killed and 2,458 wounded last week, an increase from the 287 killed and 1,458 wounded the week before.

South Vietnamese casualties were down: 253 killed, 785 wounded and seven missing compared with 389 killed, 973 wounded and 30 missing the previous week.

Kurtzman raps PSEA sanction on governor

HARRISBURG (AP) — Dr. David H. Kurtzman, superintendent of public instruction, took issue Friday with the Pennsylvania State Education Association, which has imposed sanctions on Gov. Shafer and the legislature.

Kurtzman criticized the PSEA for calling Pennsylvania an unfit place to working because of low salary schedules. The state's top school administrator said the 80,000-member teacher organization was not telling the whole story.

Referring to statistics compiled by his department, Kurtzman said only 25 of the state's 573 school districts fail to pay more than the mandated starting minimum salary for teachers of $4,500.

"The larger and more important picture is that 367 school districts are now paying a beginning salary of $5,160 or more, and that 31 are already paying beginning salaries of $5,600 or more," Kurtzman said in a statement.

Pen Argyl students attend conference

PEN ARGYL — Dorothy Mann and Joseph Gold were selected to attend the third Northeastern States Youth Citizenship Conference to be held at Boston College, Chestnut Hill, Mass., on June 5, 6, 7.

A special feature this year will be a simulated exercise dealing with an international crisis. All delegates will participate in this simulation.

Ninety "teams," each consisting of an eleventh-grade girl, an eleventh-grade boy, and a faculty adviser, from high schools in New England, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania, will attend this three-day "live-in" conference.

The Pen Argyl team will travel by plane from the Allentown airport.

The purpose of the conference is to help students gain an understanding of the major features of the present international situation and the problems involved in the attainment of world peace.

Students will consider some of the ways in which they might exercise their responsibilities as world citizens.

Fire ruins large barn, cattle saved

RICHMOND — A Washington Twp. farmer said that a fire which destroyed a large barn and seven pieces of equipment may have caused more than $30,000 damage.

Fire officials are investigating the blaze which broke out on the property of Leroy Hester, owner of the barn, between Martins Creek and Portland. He said the Wednesday night blaze was partially covered by insurance.

Hester's son, Glenn, saved about 40 head of cattle when he removed them from the barn minutes after the blaze was discovered by a man operating a bulldozer on a neighboring farm.

Hester said the fire is believed to have started a few minutes before 5 p.m. Firemen from Portland, Mount Bethel, North Bangor and Bangor arrived about 5 p.m.

N'fld youths win awards

NEWFOUNDLAND — Stephen Cross and Gary Shupe, both of Newfoundland, received their God and Country Awards in boy scouting during a special service in which the Rev. Dr. Clayton Hoag, Scranton District Superintendent, participated at the Hemlock Grove Methodist Church, Greentown.

Stephen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cross, while Gary's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shupe.

Both boys are members of Scout Troop 129, Newfoundland. They completed one hundred hours of personal service to the church and more than a year's study of the program of the church in all its outreach; attended church, church school and Methodist Youth Fellowship faithfully; memorized many passages of scripture; took part publicly in the leadership of a church service, and were approved by the area committee on scouting.

Crash victim sent home

NEWFOUNDLAND — Robert Hinton of Panther, seriously injured in an automobile accident recently near Sterling, has been discharged from Community Medical Center East, Scranton.

Parental guidance aid in fight against crime

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Care, guidance and control" were cited by Trooper William Bluff, Youth Guidance Officer at the Honesdale Barracks of the Pennsylvania State Police, as important aids in the prevention of crime . . . of which he said "fifty per cent of these committed today are by children, 18 years of age and under."

"The problem starts and ends in the home," he continued. "Some parents cooperate with police, some are antagonistic."

Dr. George Laird, vice president, presided at the meeting of the Newfoundland Rotary Club at which Trooper Bluff spoke on "Youth and Crime."

The session was at White Beauty View Resort on Lake Wallenpaupack, and included a birthday party for Rolf Halencrutz, Swedish exchange

Police honor ex-Bangor chief

BANGOR — The Slate Belt Police Assn. Wednesday night honored Glenwood P. Lewis, retired Bangor police chief. About 28 persons attended the fete in the Bangor House.

Robert Ambrose, president of the association, was master of ceremonies. Lewis served on the Bangor force for 30 years, 15 as chief. He retired last Jan. 1.

The association will not meet during the summer. The next meeting will be held Sept. 4 in Wind Gap.

South Sterling church dedicates improvements

SOUTH STERLING — At the South Sterling Methodist Church, improvements which have been made during the past few months, were dedicated during a special service at the church at which the Rev. Dr. Clayton Hoag, district superintendent, and the Rev. David

W. Flude, pastor of the church, officiated.

In the altar area, these items were dedicated: a communion rail presented by Mrs. Alice Julian; four pulpit chairs presented by Miss Marion Jewell and Miss Edith Simons; a lectern presented by the Madden family in memory of James Madden; a pulpit and communion table, donations for which came from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arneberg, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Gilpin, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hooper, and several anonymous donors.

A pulpit light was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kitzman and Mrs. Everett Snow in memory of Everett Snow.

Re-dedicated windows were rebuilt through the gifts of Estella Christman in memory of Homer S. Christman; Claude W. Snelman, Jr., in memory of Claude W. and Alice F. Snelman; and the Sunday School of 1968.

Other improvements dedicated include a communion kneeler, choir pew cushions, redecoration of the church and vestibule, new carpeting throughout, paneling of the balcony.

Storm glass and ventilators were fitted to the windows and all windows were rebuilt.

In line with the general improvements at the church, work was begun this week in remodeling of the sanitary facilities.

Bangor girl wins Merit scholarship

BANGOR — Sheila A. Rosato, a Bangor Area High School student, has been awarded a National Merit scholarship.

Miss Rosato, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Rosato, 459 Richmond Ave., Bangor, received a Wilson College Merit Scholarship. She plans to study modern foreign languages.

Miss Rosato won an American Legion citizenship award and science fair prize. She has been vice president of the senior honor society, a student council representative, copy editor of the school newspaper and a member of the chorus and senior play cast.

The Tock's Island Dam

In Thursday's issue of the Record attention was called to the hearing that will be held in Philadelphia on July 12th at 11 a.m., to discuss the development of the Delaware River by the construction of dams in the vicinity of Tock's Island, Belvidere and Chesnut Hill.

This is a reappearance of a review considering improvement of navigation, power development, flood control and irrigation which was submitted in 1933 and declared impractical. The present resolution calls for a hearing on the matter of building the before-mentioned dams for the development of hydro-electric power, for the improvement of existing navigation facilities on the river below and for other effects, including possible sources of water supplies. Monroe County has a great deal at stake in the hearing on this resolution. The Delaware Valley is unquestionably an asset to the county of Monroe. It is recognized as one of the most beautiful valleys in Pennsylvania, due to the proximity of high land on either side of the river. This has brought about an extensive development by reason of the admirable sites for summer homes and the excellent facilities for boating, bathing and other water sports.

A dam at Tock's Island would flood the very heart of the resort development of the Delaware River in this county. From the report, the purpose of the dam is to provide for the development of power and the supplying of water either to New York City or Philadelphia or both.

Should the water impounded by this dam be used for the development of power, it would be necessary during the low water season which is the height of the resort season, to run through the turbines a tremendous volume of water for the production of said power. This would mean that the shore line instead of being so appealing to the eye as it is now, would be a wide strip of exposed and decaying logs and vegetation. During the low water season, vegetation would spring up only to be drowned by the high waters the following spring and stink the following summer.

Should the dam be used for the impounding of water to supply New York or Philadelphia or both, it would again follow that during the resort season the lake would be much reduced in size and the same conditions, all derogatory to the prosperity of Monroe County, would prevail. The public would be barred from the use of the waters.

The building of a dam at Tock's Island would require the condemnation and purchase of the most valuable part of the Delaware Valley in this county and the damages would run into tremendous figures, making the expense of securing the land and building the dam outrageous.

The Delaware River is distinctly a silt carrying river. Following any severe rains or during the spring thaws, the river is so muddy that it would hardly be suitable for a water supply. In addition to this, by reason of the great amount of silt that the river carries, the lake made by a dam at this point, would be short lived for in a very few years, it would fill to the extent that the volume of water impounded would be negligible and whatever value it at first possessed for the development of power or furnishing a water supply, would be so diminished as to make a project that had cost millions, possess no practical value.

Monroe County's position, should this resolution be approved and the dam built, would be unique. Should the Federal government proceed with this undertaking, it would mean that we would be participants, for we believe that in a democracy, we, the people, are the government. This proposed dam would be built with what is known as a Federal Aid or a Federal Grant. As we understand terms, federal aid and federal grants are accomplished by taxation. Monroe County would then be paying its share of taxation to destroy for it, one of its big resort areas and the source of a great deal of the county's prosperity.

Every citizen and every organization having the interest of Monroe County at heart, cannot be conscious of county welfare, without filing a protest against the approval of the resolution. A public hearing will be held in Court Room 300, Custom House, Second and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia on Wednesday, July 12th at 11 a.m. Daylight Saving Time.

Law Day embarrassing

Law Day was an enlightening endeavor for students who attended court house festivities Wednesday and for adults and students alike who followed the program by way of the printed word.

However, Law Day was also embarrassing.

It gave us all time to reflect our personal actions and beliefs. It also drove home the fact that we aren't very intelligent and if we can believe statistics we are becoming less intelligent by the day.

Finding out that one isn't very smart is always embarrassing, regardless of the subject.

It became quite evident on Law Day that it is much easier to live a law-abiding, morally right life than it is to follow the example of a criminal or immoral individual.

It's much simpler to go straight than follow the crooked pathway of law breakers. It's much easier to find a job and earn a salary than it is to steal and swindle.

It suddenly became alarmingly clear that it's a comparatively easy task to meet life head-on and extremely difficult to search for shortcuts that curve behind the backs of parents, teachers and law enforcing agencies.

Obedient laws is simple. It doesn't take a bit of energy. But, breaking laws—that's something else. It requires time and energy to discover the many legal loopholes available or to engineer a daring feat of crime.

In this case it's the lazy man who turns out best. He adheres to the law as it's written. He works and earns a wage. He doesn't steal and maybe even commit a more serious crime.

The man who obeys the law is the intelligent individual. He uses his God given rights to maintain order in his own house.

It's the intelligent man who lives a law abiding life and charts his future according to the letter of the law.

Congratulations

Dr. Frank D. Sills is president-elect of East Stroudsburg State College—a fact that everyone knows by this time.

However, we would like to offer our sincerest congratulations at this time and state that in our opinion, Sills is deserving of the honor and well qualified to lead the college through its immediate future.

Sills is currently head of the Physical Education Department at the college. However, he has a well rounded understanding of modern education and a keen appreciation of its needs and wants.

He has played the game, worked the game and now is about to direct the game of life on a college campus. He is a man who has worked from the very bottom of education to the current lofty position to which he was elected.

Sills has touched all the bases and has learned first hand the necessity of good education and the benefits to be derived from college endeavor.

The road to the presidency of East Stroudsburg State College wasn't easy. It started with low salaries and big problems. But, through hard work and tireless pursuit, Sills has risen to the front of the class.

It is our opinion that Sills is the best qualified individual to fill the president's office at East Stroudsburg State College.

He has been honest, hard working, cooperative and understanding over the years. What better qualifications can one find?

Sills is well traveled and widely known and brings a great deal of experience with him into the president's office at ESSC.

Condemned trees outlive Washington

Early in December 1799 George Washington began to work in the rain. He was 67 years of age, six feet one, 200 pounds of dignity. The revolution was over. Trade with England was normal. The Father of our country looked over his estate at Mount Vernon, Virginia, and decided that the place was in disrepair.

In a month, the 1800's would begin and the general wanted Mount Vernon to be at its best. He was out of politics, except as a counselor. John Adams, the Federalist from Massachusetts, was the chief executive, and the new republic was about to enjoy a decade and more of peace.

December was a rainy month. It came down cold and steady out of Prince Georges County across the dotted swiss Potomac to Mount Vernon. General President put a great coat on every morning, draping it over his shoulders, and walked the mud in worn boots. He was armed with a thick knife.

No sign of age

There was no sign of age in him. He strode as erectly as though he was seated on a horse. The workmen and slaves on the estate bowed as he passed, and he nodded to each in turn. Washington might have postponed the work for prettier days. But then he would be reduced to sitting inside at that cherrywood desk writing letters. So he worked.

He walked from glade to hummock and across farm land, squinting at the big trees. Sleep number one, he thought, was to be rid of all the diseased trees. He examined the bark and branches and root structure carefully. Those that must die were marked with an eye-level slash of the bark on the north side.

The rain soaked through the coat and inside his clothes. In a month, British ships would be coming up the Potomac laden with goods for Mount Vernon. Almost everything except seed and food had to be bought abroad. Dry goods, needles, farm implements, tools, staples of all kinds. The General owned 70,000 acres in Virginia and 40,000 more on the Great Kanawa. When he placed an order with traders in Great Britain, it was as though he was buying everything for a small town.

The second week of December 1799 brought sleet. The General complained to Mrs. Washington that he had laryngitis. She urged him to take medicine. Rather severely, he said: "You know I never take anything for a cold. Let it go as it came." He believed that the only way to treat a cold is with contempt.

At three in the morning, he awakened Martha. He would not have done this unless he was worried. The General shivered in spasms. He said he was having an attack of ague. The great chest heaved rapidly and superficially. He could barely speak. She sat at his side. Medicine, like the nation, was in its infancy.

At dawn, Mrs. Washington donned her robe and dust cap and got her husband a mixture of molasses, vinegar and butter. The General choked on it. His throat hurt so much that he could not swallow. She sent a servant to bring the overseer of the farm. He had experience in bleeding.

This was considered to be a palliative. The overseer drew a pint of blood in a basin. The First President felt worse. A strip of flannel cloth soaked in liniment was pinned around his neck. Physicians were summoned as Washington gasped for air.

The white-wigged gentlemen withdrew more blood, gave him noxious substances to gargle and administered cathartics. He had lost strength fighting the cold in the forest; he had lost more through withdrawal of one quart of blood. He was probably suffering from a streptococcus infection of the throat and bronchial pneumonia.

Within 48 hours, the big virile man was reduced to gray struggling wreckage. Saturday, December 14, 1799, came up clear and warm. The capital had been alerted that the First President was gravely ill. Ironically, George Washington refused to call the city by its name. To him, it was "Federal City," never Washington.

At 11 o'clock on that Saturday, he stared heavily-lidded at a doctor bent over the bed. "This is the debt which we all must pay," he whispered. "I am not afraid to go." At 11:30, he gasped and was gone.

The condemned trees outlived him...

What is it?

WASHINGTON — All you hear these days are people running around saying that other people should "tell it like it is." Politicians, magazines, newspapers and television stations are desperately trying to tell it like it is.

And I would love to get in on the game and really tell it like it is, only I'm having a terrible time finding out what it is that I should be telling. For weeks I've been asking people, "What is it? What is it? Tell me what it is and I'll be glad to spread the word and tell it like it is."

But all I get are confusing answers. One fellow, whom I approached because he looked very hip and worked for the poverty program, said, "Man, if you don't know what it is, you just can't tell it like it is." Another man, I think he works for SNCC, said, "Chief, don't ask what it is, just tell it like it is, dig?"

At beginning

This left me right back where I started. However, I'm not alone. Bobby Kennedy is racing everywhere trying to tell it like it is, but from what I hear, he doesn't even know where it is. Maybe he should ask Dick Nixon. The former Vice-President may not know what it is, but he knows what it was.

Of course, there's always Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. A man with his money figures to know what it is and he probably has more of it than anyone. One of these days New York may tell it like it is, that is.

Perhaps George Romney will be the person to finally tell it like it is. Judging from the sad look on George's face, he knows exactly what it is, he just doesn't know what to do with it. If the truth be known, poor old Harold Stassen probably has been telling it like it is for years, only nobody's been listening.

Which brings us to Hubert H. Humphrey. He's too concerned with when it is, or will be, to go around telling it like it is. On the other hand, President Johnson knows what it is, where it is and even HOW it is, and that's why he doesn't dare tell it. At least, not like it is.

George Wallace can't tell it like it is, because that's not his way. What he's doing is telling us how it had better be, if we know what's good for us. (But that's not like it is.) At this point, I have only a small contribution to make: People shouldn't tell it like it is. Grammatically speaking, they should tell it AS it is.

Where in the Bill of Rights does it say anything about "freedom to loot?"

A wire service reported that Bobby Kennedy spoke to a crowd of 10,000 in a Muncie, Ind., auditorium. It seats but 3,600. The standees must have been on one another's shoulders.

It's odd, but there's nothing like becoming President to ruin a man's reputation for honesty.

New York is a "Summer Festival" and Washington is a "Summer Campout."

Two British warships came to Washington recently, but just on a social visit. I was hoping they came to protect us.

Slick Gothic romance

HUNTER'S GREEN. By Phyllis A. Whitney. Doubleday. $4.95.

Whitney fans will find this novel a highly concentrated form of the author's best love-story-plus-danger-but - all - ends - well sort of fiction.

Things happen around an old mansion on an estate called Allmore, not far from London, and the scene has a touch of the gothic novel.

The tale is told by its heroine Eve, now 22. Three years ago she had entered into an impetuous marriage with Justin North, a bit of a blue blood who is having trouble keeping the estate going. Two years ago she had run away.

The trouble? Partly the incompatibility between nonentity and blue blood; but mostly the fact she had learned of Justin's earlier affair with his neighbor Alicia, and being jealous, had flirted unwisely with Justin's younger brother Marc.

Now she has returned from America, supposedly to see Justin once more and decide whether to give him up. But Justin seems to have made up his mind to divorce her and marry Alicia, and Marc has taken up with a brash young fashion model of the Mod type (but really a likeable kid).

There is a murder of a minor character, concealed as an accident; there is an attempted murder, with Eve as the target; there is a last-minute exposure of the real villain; there is a last-second rescue of the heroine from the villain's last effort to eliminate her.

This is slick fiction (why is it the males always talk like ham actors in a third-rate play in these things?), laced with a touch of whodahil, and more than a touch of old-fashioned schmaltz.

But never mind, it's all in fun, and at least it's clean. The author has a skilled narrative hand at popular entertainments and diversions. There must be a great many readers who would prefer her romantic adventure to today's bedroom novels.

James Bond rides again

COLONEL SUN. By Robert Markham (King-sley Amis). Harper. $5.95.

The new James Bond thriller starts off with a real snapper. Bond's secret service boss "M." (Adm. Sir Miles Messervy) is kidnapped and Bond himself barely fights free of the same fate.

The mayhem that begins in London quickly shifts to Athens, where there is a bit of skull-duggery in which Bond brushes against a unit of a Russian intelligence net. But it isn't the Russians who have "M."

It's in Athens that Bond finds a glamorous agent for the Russians, Ariadne; she's a little inexperienced in the subtleties of espionage, but eagerly willing to learn. Ariadne attaches herself to Bond, and recruits a Greek patriot, who has an old enemy to settle with.

So this odd trio makes its way, dangerously, to the real scene of the action, a Greek island where Col. Sun Liangtan of the Chinese People's Army has arranged to create an international incident damaging to the British. It wouldn't be fair to give away more of the plot.

This is the first Bond novel written by Amis as a successor to the late Ian Fleming.

It may have a little more violence (unarmed combat, armed combat with all sorts of weapons on land and sea, torture, etc.) and a few more lucky, hairbreadth escapes than usual. It may have a little less of the casual insouciance of the Fleming prose. But it puts a touch of mellowed humanism into the Bond personality and still carries on with the Bond tradition of dramatic invincibility.

Writer found fun

SOME BIRDS DON'T FLY. By Gary Paulsen. Rand McNally. $3.95.

Paulsen's collection of guffaws and giggles opens with an anecdote about an Ajax Nike missile that was supposed to hit a drone plane in a practice shot, but hit a buzzard instead. Why? Because the buzzard had just been tagged by a game warden and was wearing an aluminum disc—and the radar aiming mechanism locked in on the disc.

That is just a sample of the oddities and tomfooleries at missile ranges and satellite tracking stations that the author observed as a technician for several years, both in and out of uniform.

There are yarns about missiles that misfire, go the wrong way or can't be destroyed in flight; about an important test launching in California that was held up because a band of hoboes from a nearby freight train got into the field of fire, about mice that drove everyone crazy by chewing up wires, until some genius gave them lemon peel to chew on instead.

There also was the computer specialist who didn't want to be cross-trained in another skill, and got back at the boss very neatly; an odd bit of personal conversation that floated into a communications network, and an incident in which the author was scared purple tracking down a UFO.

Paulsen seems to be the sort of natural born comedian who finds hilarity wherever he may be. His description of a sojourn among the guys who wear the headsets and push the buttons is full of fun.

Another Bridey Murphy

THE SEARCH FOR THE GIRL WITH THE BLUE EYES. By Jess Stearn. Doubleday. $4.95.

Stearn is reporting on his efforts to find supporting evidence for a case of reincarnation, which in some ways is similar to a celebrated case a few years back, in which a modern-day Virginia Tighe recalled her earlier existence in Ireland as Bridey Murphy.

The new example offered tantalizing prospects. Usually when an individual under hypnosis describes acts and scenes of a supposed earlier life, the span of time is so great that there is no way to seek verification.

But 17-year-old Joanne MacIver of Orillia, Ont., told of living as Susan Ganier only a century ago, only a few miles from her modern home.

Bringing in a professional hypnotist, Stearn recorded a great mass of detail from Susan's life. Then he tried to check out the story. Unfortunately, birth, marriage and death records, deeds, census reports and other written materials for rural 19th Century Canada were either nonexistent, incomplete or inaccurate, and the author never found documentary proof of Susan's existence.

Yet there were small, circumstantial clues that seemed to fit the pattern of what might have been Susan's life. As a skeptical reporter Stearn finally concluded that "One did not disprove anything by not proving it. The investigations, while not fully confirming Susan's statements, did not exclude them as possibilities."

In one respect, Joanne MacIver's recital went beyond the ordinary case record. Speaking as Susan, she told of being visited by her father after his death, and of learning that he was at a certain level of an after-life, awaiting a return to earth. And speaking as both Joanne and Susan, she was aware of her own return.

Even for those who have no belief in reincarnation, the story of Joanne and Susan, and Stearn's investigations, present some interesting reading.

Shingles painful

There are few more painful and probably less understood conditions than that which is commonly called shingles. This is a painful inflammatory condition in which tiny blisters appear in regular formation on the trunk of the body. Almost always it follows the course of one of the nerves. Technically shingles is called Herpes Zoster and sometimes Zona because the condition girdles the body.

The cause of this distressing condition is an infectious virus which inflames the nerve endings. These blisters are not unlike those that accompany chicken pox. Almost always they come out after a few days of very tender skin sensations with a feeling of pins and needles.

Shingles may affect any part of the body and are seen on the face and even in the outer ear canal. Most often they occur on the skin of the chest wall, the abdomen, the thigh, and the back.

For some strange reason children are rarely affected with this condition. It is definitely a communicable disease and can be transmitted from person to person with direct contact. With advancing age shingles occur more frequently.

The prominent symptom is long lasting pain. Sometimes in patients who are undernourished or who are recovering from a severe illness, shingles may last for weeks and for even months. Long after the blisters have disappeared and the skin surface seems to be normal, sharp shooting momentary sensations of pain may occur.

Most of the treatment is devoted to relieving the pain with pain killing drugs. Rigid cleanliness prevents the tiny blisters from becoming contaminated and infected.

Formerly it was thought that large doses of vitamin B were of value in reducing the healing time. Actually, I do not have much faith in the concept but since vitamin B is harmless in normal doses it may be tried for the psychological value alone.

With the discovery of cortisone and ACTH there has been a radical change in the control of this inflammatory disease of the nerve endings. When these are used in the very early phase of shingles the inflammation and the symptoms can be markedly relieved. When they are given in large doses in the stage before the blisters appear many of the distressing effects can be modified.

Antibiotic ointments are used to cover the blisters to prevent secondary infection.

Some physicians have felt there is great value in the use of an immune serum which is taken from the blood of a patient who has recently recovered from Herpes Zoster. There may be some advantage to this because it is said to help the body combat the disease.

In the very early stages before blistering or redness is seen some people without advice apply adhesive tape strappings to the tender area on the chest wall. This temporary support may bring temporary relief but it further irritates the surrounding skin and makes the healing process of the tender blisters last longer.

There are now many interesting reports that the virus that causes shingles may soon be identified, leading the way to the preparation of a vaccine which will completely eliminate these terribly painful shingles.

Reibman introduces bill on insurance

HARRISBURG — State Senator Jeanette F. Reibman Wednesday introduced legislation which would establish a pool of all insurance companies writing fire coverage in Pennsylvania in order to aid property owners in potential riot areas.

Sen. Reibman remarked, "It is distressing but none the less true that civil disorders have caused wide spread damage in certain areas and as a result fire insurance companies display great concern about these high risk areas."

"Obviously the home owner and businessman in these areas is entitled to protection and Senate Bill 1419, which I have introduced, would provide such protection could be obtained through the cooperative endeavor of the State Insurance Commission and the companies themselves."

Necessary measure

Legislation introduced for spraying

HARRISBURG — Sen. Jeanette Reibman (D-18th), Wednesday joined in sponsoring a resolution calling for investigation by a senate committee of the policies of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture as they relate to the use of pesticides.

Sen. Reibman commented, "The Hawk Mountain Bird Sanctuary was recently sprayed with a pesticide designed to aid in control of the gypsy moth. The use of pesticides for insect control has long been questioned by prominent scientists such as Prof. Francis J. Trembley of Lehigh University, and by thousands of concerned Pennsylvanians."

"It is believed that pesticides upset the balance of nature and that some pose a threat to humans as well as birds and animals. The issue deserves careful study."

"I hope this committee will promptly and thoroughly investigate this controversial matter."

The resolution calls for a five-member senate committee to investigate the present policies and laws of the commonwealth relating to the use of pesticides to determine whether their use is warranted for the protection of lives and health and the preservation of our natural resources.

The committee is to hold hearings and report its findings and recommendations to this session of the General Assembly.

Marines offer new type enlistment

STROUDSBURG — SSgt. James Nunes, local Marine Corps recruiter, said Tuesday that high school seniors will be given the opportunity to enlist in the Marine Corps' 120-Day Delay Program.

This program enables a high school senior to enlist in the Marine Corps while still in school. Upon graduation he will leave for active duty within 120 days and not before his graduation.

Other advantages of the program are that the 120 days delay in going on active duty will be credited towards the completion of his total military service obligation.

Also the 120-day period is credited for pay and promotion.

Anyone desiring additional information on this program or any other program offered by the Marine Corps may contact SSgt. Nunes in the Stroudsburg Post Office from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Car hits tree, man injured

EAST STROUDSBURG — A 23-year-old East Stroudsburg man suffered head cuts when his car crashed into a tree on a rural road in Middle Smithfield Twp. Tuesday at 11:20 p.m., State Police from Stroudsburg said.

The driver, Larry E. Nauman of 32 Green Street, refused treatment and told police he would see his family physician.

The car failed to make a turn in the road, struck a tree and became stuck in the mud.

Jackson oks sewage law

READERS — Jackson Township supervisors unanimously approved Wednesday night a sewage ordinance during a meeting in Readers School.

The ordinance will prohibit installation of an individual or community sewage disposal system until a permit is obtained.

The supervisors appointed

Jake and Paul Miller as township sewage inspectors.

Plans for the unit must be approved and conform to regulations on the 1988 Pennsylvania Sewage Facilities Act.

Cost of the permit will be $25 and there will be a $300 fine for violation of the ordinance.

After Wednesday's meeting Russell Frable, supervisor chairman, said that the board will enact the one per cent real estate transfer tax at a special meeting on Wednesday, May 8.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

That citadel of conservatism, the editorial staff of a daily newspaper, has fallen! The turtleneck has taken over.

Not that they'd ever have served as prototypes of the Gray Flannel Suit, exactly, since their preference in clothes is as varied as their personalities. Neither did they serve as models for late movie reporters: trench coats and slouch hats.

The trench coats I'll grant you, but most of them never wear hats at all. But, basically, they're well-worn conservatives, designed to fit inconspicuously into any setting, whether at a rainy night accident or a school board meeting.

And now, one by one, looking a trifle self-conscious, come the turtlenecked shirts:

white and yellow and black, I've counted so far. Actually, despite the offers of beads from by-standers, I thought they looked rather nice.

The trouble about men in crisp shirts and ties is that they seldom stay that way: either crisp or tied. The first thing a man seems to do, on returning from a meeting, is to loosen his tie and unbutton the top button of his shirt, which spoils the effect.

There's one thing about turtleneck shirts; the only way to ruin the effect is to take them off altogether. However, I still think there's something lacking in that unadorned neckline, that beads would fill in nicely. Wooden beads, maybe? Not even leather links? Or chain mail?

Mrs. Brian Charles Heller (Arnold's Studio)

Susan Miller bride of Navy bandsman

ANALOMINK — Gladolais set the Springtime theme at the wedding of Miss Susan Gail Miller to Brian Charles Heller, on Saturday, April 27, at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, East Stroudsburg.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Miller of Analomink. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Heller of Stroudsburg.

Rev. John Bendik officiated at the ceremony and nuptial mass. Nancy Shukatis was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of angelskin peau and Chantilly lace with a cameo neckline, long, flared sleeves, a scalloped hemline and chapel train. She wore a matching headpiece of seed pearls and crystal with French illusion veiling. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and ivy.

Miss Nancy Metzgar of Analomink was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Gail Heller, sister of the bridegroom, of Stroudsburg; Miss Linda Metzgar of Analomink; Miss Lori Jo Subrinsky of Stroudsburg, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The attendants all wore A-line gowns in mint green with attached train. They wore seed pearl crowns and flowers in mint green and carried bouquets of daisies and yellow carnations.

The flower girl wore a similar dress and carried a basket of daisies and carnations.

John Schnaitman of Stroudsburg was best man. Ushers were Charles Houck of Stroudsburg, and Bruce Werkheiser, cousin of the bridegroom, also of Stroudsburg.

The bride's mother wore an A-lined dress in ice blue with a jeweled neckline, white hat and gloves, matching shoes and purse and a wrist corsage of gardenias. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige tweed dress and coat with brown accessories and had a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

A reception for 150 guests was held at the Eagles Social Hall in Stroudsburg. The Harry Fair Quartet provided music.

The bride's going-away costume was two-piece pink suit with matching hat and navy blue accessories.

After a honeymoon in Rome, Italy, they will make their home in Gaeta, Italy, where the bridegroom is serving in the Navy with the Commander of the Sixth Fleet Band, aboard the USS Little Rock.

The bride was graduated from Stroudsburg High School in 1965 and was employed as a secretary at Line Material Industries in East Stroudsburg. Her husband, also a graduate of Stroudsburg High School, attended Mansfield State College.

Repsher-Smith marriage in Port Jervis announced

Seven youth choirs to join junior musicians in concert

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County will share in the observance of National Music Week, May 5-12 with a sacred concert of choral and instrumental music at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Sunday, May 5, at 4 p.m.

In addition to the Juniors and Juveniles of the Music Club of the Stroudsburgs, there will be a choral group of choir members from seven churches in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

Sponsored by The National Federation of Music Clubs, this is the 45th observance of National Music Week. Theme this year is "Music, a Keynote for Living."

The first synchronized celebration of National Music Week was in 1924 under the guidance of the late Charles H. Tremaine. For many years banker patron of arts, and director of the Metropolitan Opera, Otto Kahn was national chairman.

Since 1924 when President Calvin Coolidge served as first honorary chairman, each of the nation's Chief Executive has given moral support to the week.

Mrs. H. B. George, chairman of the national music week observance here, is also advisor of the Junior and Juvenile Music Club of the Stroudsburgs.

The combined choir of young people from the seven churches will be under the direction of Mrs. Norma Treible, director and organist of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Participating churches are:

Bell Ringers, and choir of East Stroudsburg Methodist Church; choir of Grace Lutheran Church East Stroudsburg; Presbyterian Church, East Stroudsburg; St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg; First Presbyterian Church, Stroudsburg; Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Organists of the Junior Music Clubs are Susan Farmer, Marie Conklin and Cindy Woolever.

The instrumental music will be presented by the Pocono Junior-Juvenile Instrumental Ensemble, directed by Albert DeRenzis.

The public is invited to join in the celebration and hear the young musical talent of the area.

Judith Regina Holdorff (Lawrence Studio)

Holdorff-Taylor engagement

STROUDSBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Holdorff of Arlington Heights, Stroudsburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Regina, to Michael C. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Taylor of Wind Gap, R.D. 1.

Miss Holdorff was graduated from Stroudsburg High School and is employed in the office of Edinger-Wyckoff Inc.

Mr. Taylor was graduated from Nazareth Area High School and is also employed by Edinger-Wyckoff Inc.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Petunias susceptible to variety of diseases

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Record Garden Correspondent
BEDDING PLANT TROUBLE — Most home gardeners who grow their own petunias, zinnias, and other bedding plants know that these annuals are susceptible to diseases known as damping-off, root rot and stem rot. Even commercial growers have a lot of trouble with these diseases this time of year. You can avoid a lot of these troubles by growing your plants in a mixture of peatmoss, sand, and vermiculite or perlite, eliminating the "garden" soil most home gardeners use.

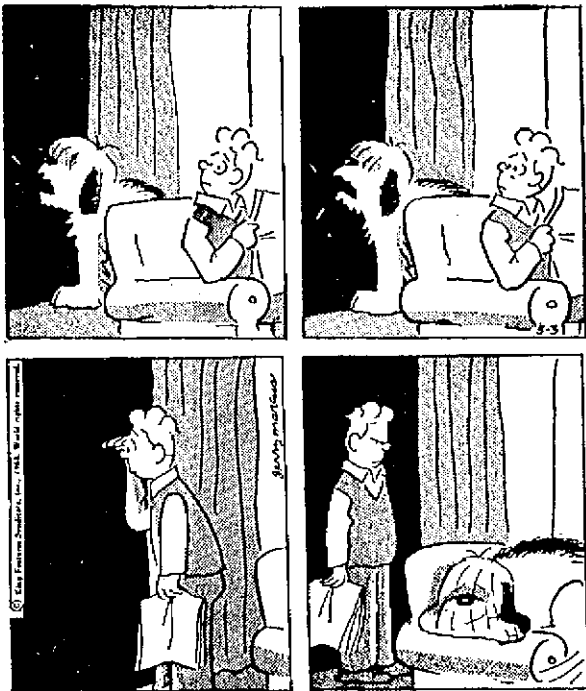

Garden soils are often teeming with fungus organisms which pounce on the tiny seedlings. The light soil mixes used by commercial growers helps eliminate these problems. You can still bake your soil at 180 degrees for one-half hour and be sure of ridding your soil of pathogenic organisms. Many plant disease are encouraged by a soil with poor structure and drainage, improper watering and careless planting. Seedlings should be allowed sufficient space and not planted deeply.

Good air circulation around the plants helps prevent development of disease. Avoid excessive watering and let the soil to approach the dry side before watering. This allows for better aeration and healthier root growth. Use plenty of sand and peatmoss in your mixture.

GARDENIAS AGAIN: If your plant has "stubborn buds"—refused to unfold and produce a blossom, blame it on dry air. The gardenia likes plenty of humidity (in a greenhouse, it's anywhere from 40 to 60 per cent), and most homes do not have enough humidity for good gardenia growth. The gardenia likes a warm, humid atmosphere and a location that affords some sunshine (not too much direct light!).

TRUDY

During the summer, from June 1 to September 1, keep the gardenia outdoors. Set the pot in a hole in the ground and fill in around it with peat. Keep the peat watered and this cools the roots, making the plant happy.

Bagpipes swinging with jazz

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For centuries bagpipes skirted. Then Rufus Harley got his hands on a set in a New York pawnshop. Now they swing.

Harley, a 31-year-old goateed Philadelphian, has taken the ancient instrument out of the misty Scottish highlands and introduced it to the funky jazz dens of Detroit, Washington, Pittsburgh and his hometown.

Scotland the Brave" has had to make room in bagpipe repertoire for wailing, ear-piercing versions of "Windy" and "Chim Chim Cheree."

"I have a sort of a spiritual thing about this instrument," Harley said.

The thing started five years ago, when Harley heard the funeral dirge of the Black Watch pipers during television coverage of President Kennedy's funeral procession.

"I picked up the saxophone and tried to make it sound like a bagpipe," he says. "I couldn't do it."

So he bought a set of pipes for $120 in a pawn shop. But 15 years playing the tenor saxophone and virtually every other reed instrument hadn't prepared him for his first struggles with the primitive, balky bagpipes.

"I went on instinct for about two months," he says. "I learned to tune it and play a scale. Then I took it to my music teacher."

Dennis Sandole of Philadelphia had no experience with a bagpipe, either, so they both went on instinct. The instrument and Harley had to be adjusted before they were compatible.

The pipes were too loud, so Harley silenced one of the three drones that provide the continuous braam sound.

Then he had to work up the lung power to keep the bag full of air. "I lift weights every day — tug on the edge of my bed and like that — to keep my muscles strong," he says. "Before my mind was ready, but not my body. Now my body is up with it. You dig?"

He attained a measure of ability, rounded up pianist Oliver Collins, drummer Billy Abner and bassist James Glenn and tried out the pipes before an audience.

Coal may feature comeback as fuel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Home-makers who still cringe at the memory of banking the fire every night will be burning coal again if researchers have their way.

But relax. That dirty old coal bin is gone forever.

Researchers have already extracted gas from coal. They begin next month the task of doing it cheaply enough to sell.

It's one of a series of projects aimed at unlocking the potential of coal as a source for gas and petroleum.

"We believe coal can and will play a significant role in meeting the nation's future energy needs both as a source of raw material for synthesis operations and as a direct fuel," says M.A. Wright chairman of Humble Oil and Refining Co. of Houston.

The president of Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., of Pittsburgh, an agency supported by coal producers, thinks so, too.

In April a machine in the Bituminous laboratories begins the continuous production of gas by chewing up 100 pounds of coal an hour. An old machine used five pounds an hour.

It's hoped that by 1980 plants gulping down from 10,000 to 12,000 tons of coal a day will supply enough gas to supply a city the size of Akron, Ohio.

"We're not about to run out of oil and gas in the immediate future," says Bituminous President James R. Garvey. "But the contrast between coal reserves and oil and gas reserves is so striking — and consumption of oil and gas is going up so fast — that we have to start thinking in long range terms."

President Robert G. Dunlop of Sun Oil Co. notes that 10 years ago producers thought they'd found enough gas to last for 992 years. Now they think they've tapped enough reservoirs to last 16 years.

Garvey estimates known coal deposits alone could provide enough gas through present technologies to meet the nation's gas needs for 24 years.

And even the most optimistic coal men hope only to supplement, not replace, existing fuels.

Right now coal-produced gas costs about a dime more per 1,000 cubic feet than natural gas. Garvey figures the cost of making gas from coal will drop and natural gas prices will rise until in five to ten years, they're equal.

Meanwhile, oil companies are pushing research on extracting petroleum from coal.

Continental Oil Co. became the nation's biggest coal producer after acquiring Consolidation Coal Co. Gulf Oil has a solid position in the field. Humble and Kerr-McGee Corp. are buying coal fields on their own.

Eight county notary publics gain approval

Avoid direct sun. It's a good idea to syringe the plant almost daily to keep the buds moist.

Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, "How to Grow Gardenias and Camellias." You can get these difficult items to bloom for you indoors if you follow my guide.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Please tell us if we can grow tree peonies. I heard they are hardy."

Answer: Tree peonies will take 20 below zero, or so, making them quite hardy. Plant them in a well-drained sunny or semi-shaded location and they will live for generations.

Unlike common peonies, they do not die back to the ground, but produce woody stems, increasing each year to four or five feet. You'll like the huge flowers up to eight inches or so on small bush-like trees.

ACS holds election of officers

STROUDSBURG — Members and guests of the Monroe County Unit, American Cancer Society, were addressed by James Hartsoe, coordinator of health programs for ACS, as he discussed the consideration of Regional Medical Programs, during the unit's annual dinner meeting.

Hartsoe said that the three biggest causes of death—heart, cancer and stroke cases and the thing to do is to get these agencies and others together, to work as one regional health agency in order to get all the small areas combined for better service and education.

The Cancer Society is getting involved since our efforts in working with other voluntary health agencies would promote a much better program, Hartsoe said.

Honored members

Mrs. Antoinette (W.H.) Hoffman, executive director of the county unit, received special honors from the members for her generous and dedicated work for the Society.

Tribute was also given Dr. Francis Donatelli, outgoing president of the unit, and Richard Klotach, chairman of the Cancer Crusade for 1967 and 1968. Herman P. Luber, special gifts chairman, was also honored.

Newly elected officers are: Dr. Bruce Dunlop, president; Calvin Counterman, first vice president; Rev. Charles Adam, second vice president; Mrs. David Nelson, secretary, and Blaine Rice, treasurer.

Delegates to the annual state convention will be Mrs. Marion Croft and Mrs. Robert Stofflet.

Newly elected board members for a three-year term are: Mrs. Paul Edinger Jr.; Mrs. Stanley Wilush, Dr. Jean Golden and Gilbert Dunning.

Klotach reported that the Cancer Crusade has reached half its goal of $11,000 and that volunteers will continue to crusade for support from county residents.

Dr. James Fahl, chairman of public education, reported that the "Paps smear test" was administered to 103 employees at the Tobyhanna Army Depot in April. Forty three educational films and 5,000 pieces of literature were distributed during the year.

Dr. M. J. Leitner, professional education chairman, said that the unit is maintaining a constant check-up on all patients for evidence of cancer, in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Dr. Edmund Magann, service chairman, reported on the number of dressings and medications provided by the unit and distributed to cancer patients.

Pike seeks mosquitoes

MILFORD — Are the mosquitoes bothering you?

Do you have a likely mosquito breeding area near your home?

"If the answer to these questions is yes, and you are a Pike County resident, the Pennsylvania Department of Health would appreciate hearing from you," said Lee Gemmill, Pike County Sanitarian.

Gemmill said the State Health Department is surveying Pike County for predominate locations and types of mosquitoes to be found.

"Information obtained from the survey, along with methods to minimize the mosquito problem, will then be presented to the community," Gemmill said.

Pike County residents bothered by mosquitoes or who have knowledge of breeding areas are urged to contact the Health Department by telephoning 296-6512 or writing to the State Health Center, 111 West Hartford St., Milford.

E-burg man files suit for $10,000

STROUDSBURG — An East Stroudsburg man has filed suit in Monroe County court seeking damages allegedly suffered as the result of an automobile accident claimed to be the fault of a Falls Church, Va. woman.

According to the papers filed Tuesday Joseph D. O'Donnell, East Stroudsburg, is seeking in excess of $10,000 from Nancy L. Kautler, Falls Church, Va. Plaintiff maintains that while he was operating his vehicle in a southerly direction on Rt. 611 in Pocono Township last February he was struck from behind by the Kautler vehicle.

Voting records

Area legislators follow steady pattern

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Area lawmakers maintained a fairly steady voting pattern on major legislation during the past week (April 29-May 3) as they returned to Capital Hill following a three-week election recess.

The voting record of representatives J. Russell Eshback, Bushkill and Russell Kowalyszyn, Northampton and senators Jeanette F. Reibman, Easton and T. Newell Wood, Dallas, follows:

H-1374 (passed) — An act relating to volunteer firemen's relief associations, clarifying their purposes and objectives, establishing criteria and standards for the conduct of their affairs, providing for their formation, recognition, continuing operation and for their dissolution in appropriate circumstances and the distribution of their funds. (Yes—Eshback, Kowalyszyn)

H-2167 (passed) — Amend the "Penal Code," prohibiting the throwing, shooting or propelling of certain missiles into an occupied motor vehicle and prescribing a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000 and classification of the crime as a misdemeanor. (Yes—Eshback, Kowalyszyn)

H-2256 (defeated) — Amend the "Liquor Code" to further regulate within quota requirements the issuance or exchange of certain retail licenses for the sale of liquor and malt or brewed beverages. (Yes—Eshback, Kowalyszyn)

H-2293 (passed) — Amend an appropriation act for the Department of Public Welfare by increasing the appropriation for nurses' scholarships by $375,000 to a total of $2.7 million for the current fiscal year. (Yes—Eshback, Kowalyszyn)

S-1109 (passed) — Provide for an appropriation for the State Historical and Museum Commission covering continuing expenses involved in the Pennsylvania registry of historic landmarks as part of the national registry of historic landmarks. (Yes—Eshback, Kowalyszyn)

In the Senate:

Ann Landers

Take all precautions

Dear Ann Landers: I need help and I need it fast. I am engaged to a man whose family is squirrely. Ned's mother pops tranquilizing pills into her mouth as if they were peanuts. Whenever she is faced with a crisis (like the cleaning lady not showing up), she stops eating and goes on dollies. Ned has an older sister who carries gin around in a cough medicine bottle and drinks all day. It took me two years to catch on. This girl is too sick (spelled drunk) to work half the time so Ned has to help her out with her bills.

Ned has a couple of brothers who mix up the pills with the booze and one of these days they are going to hit just the right combination and wake up dead someplace.

I cannot understand how come Ned is so normal. He is the best adjusted man I have ever known — and a teetotaler who hates pills. I have to fight with him to take an aspirin for a headache.

I love Ned and want to marry him but when I look at his family I get scared to death for fear our children might take after one of the kooks. What do you say?

EYE OF THE CYCLONE
Dear Eye: My consultants tell me that behavioral problems are more environmental than hereditary. But, they caution — we do inherit nervous systems.

If you marry Ned, I hope you will move to another city as an added precaution. Nutty relatives can make a well person sick.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter may sound terribly stupid but it is a problem that bothers not only me, but some of my friends. Maybe you can help. I am a girl, 16, and have been dating for over a year. I go with nice fellows and my folks have met and approved of them all. The problem is that whenever I leave the house my mother and father both kiss me good-bye as if I am going to Europe or something. The other evening my dad was in the back of the house and my mother shouted to him, "Come kiss Ellie good-bye—she's leaving." I felt like a fool. Please tell me what to do about this?

KISSIN KIN
Dear Kin: Stop complaining. Your parents sound like warm-hearted people who love you and aren't ashamed to show it. If you could read the letters I get from teenagers whose parents give them the deep freeze you'd appreciate yours.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Car, tractor in collision

STROUDSBURG — A car and tractor-trailer collided Tuesday afternoon in the intersection of Ann and Seventh Streets. Police reported no injuries.

The drivers were Larry P. Camfield, 91 Knox Ave., Mount Pocono, driver of the car, and William J. Hamel of Northampton R.D. 1.

Police said the Camfield car was pulling away from the curb at the time of the accident.

Obituaries

Mrs. Odesta Walter, 86, Tannersville native, dies

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Odesta May Walter, 86, died in her home, Star Route, Stroudsburg, Thursday.

She was born in Tannersville, a daughter of the late Jackson and Sarah Freedland Smith. She had been a resident of the county most of her lifetime.

Her husband, Elmer J. Walter, died in September, 1967. She was a member of the Wesley Chapel Church of Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Walter is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Conley of Tacoma Park, Md.; five sons, Russell J. Walter of Patistown, Harry M. Walter of Northumberland, John R. Walter of Reading, Elmer L. Walter of Stroudsburg R.D. 3, and Robert A. Walter, at home. Also, nine grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren; three half sisters, Mrs. Edith Funk of Stroudsburg, Mrs. Addie Christman and Mrs. Grace Dellaven, both of East Stroudsburg; four half brothers, Aaron Smith of Crags Meadow, Lewis Smith of East Stroudsburg R.D. 3, John Smith of Swiftwater, and Elmer Smith of Easton.

Services will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Lanterman Funeral Home with Rev. B. Paul Gernet officiating.

Burial will be in the Evergreen Hill Memorial Garden, East Stroudsburg.

Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m.

J. J. McGuire, Pocono Manor dies at 52

POCONO MANOR — John J. McGuire, 52, of Pocono Manor, died in the General Hospital of Monroe County Thursday.

Born in Philadelphia, he was a son of the late James McGuire and Mrs. Mary McGuire and had been a resident of Pocono Manor for the past 10 years. He was a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Mt. Pocono.

Mr. McGuire is survived by his mother and his wife, Mrs. Anne Nelson McGuire, at home; a stepson, William Martin, St. Paul, Minn.; four sisters, Misses Margaret and Rose McGuire, Philadelphia, Mrs. Dewey Fisher, Conshohocken, Ohio, and Mrs. Robert Sherzinger, Philadelphia; and two brothers, James and Joseph McGuire, Philadelphia.

A requiem mass will be celebrated at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Mt. Pocono, with the Rev. Robert Galligan, celebrant. Burial will be in the Laurel Hill Cemetery, Minisink Hills. Friends may call at the funeral home on Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

E-burg chorus to exchange concerts

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg High School choruses, under the direction of Miss Nancy Joy Koch, will sponsor a joint exchange concert with Warrior Run H. S. in the E.S.H.S. auditorium, May 10, at 8 p.m. "Mass in G" by Franz Schubert is a featured selection. The eighth and ninth grade choruses will sing "Trumpet Voluntary" by Henry Purcell. Separate selections will be presented by both high school choruses. A finale for the concert will be "Alleluia."

S-burg names Dr. Metzgar health officer

STROUDSBURG — Dr. Marshall R. Metzgar, 41 N. Seventh St., Stroudsburg, was appointed health officer by the Stroudsburg Borough Council Wednesday night after accepting the resignation of Samuel VanGordon, who said he will resign July 1.

VanGordon, 816 Thomas St., said that he was resigning because of ill health.

Truman Burnett, Stroudsburg businessman, will remain as assistant health officer at $54 per week. He also serves as secretary of the board of health and will make investigations and reports directly to Dr. Metzgar and the board.

The one per cent real estate transfer tax was re-enacted by the council and Frank J. Smith, Monroe County prothonotary and clerk of courts, was appointed as collection agent with compensation set at two per cent commission.

A public hearing will be held at 7 p.m. on June 5 to discuss a proposal by the Fox Ridge Realty Co. to construct an apartment house. Needed by the firm is a variance from the zoning ordinance before they can proceed.

In other business, the street department reported expenses of $1,438 and the police department reported 187 arrests with fines of $544 collected for the month. There were eight fires in the borough and 16 investigations by the board of health.

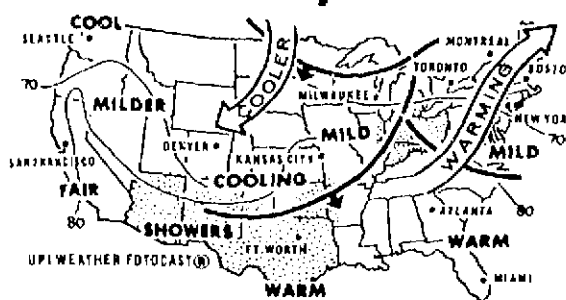

A public hearing will be held on June 5 to consider an amendment to the zoning ordinance as requested by the Fox Ridge Realty Company. The resignation of Samuel VanGordon as health officer of the borough, was accepted, effective July 1.

Ashcroft named to honor society

SCRANTON — Joseph G. Ashcroft, a junior at Scranton University, was named to Alpha Sigma Nu, Jesuit National Honor Society, at the university. Students are chosen for membership on the basis of scholarship, loyalty and service.

Ashcroft, a 1965 graduate of Central Catholic High School, is the son of Mrs. Ann Ashcroft of Anasomink St., East Stroudsburg.

Absentee count today

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners today will begin count of 192 absentee ballots cast in the statewide April 23 primary.

Ballot counting will begin following a short meeting of the board scheduled for 9:30 a.m.

Only scheduled business for the session, postponed from Thursday, is a meeting with county treasurer Thomas Joyce to discuss county loan arrangements.

An official vote count is expected by May 10 according to Mrs. Lovell Banks, county registrar.

Jennie Starner's rites conducted

EAST STROUDSBURG — Funeral services for Mrs. Jennie Grace Starner, 90, of 2 Day St., East Stroudsburg, were held Thursday in the Lanterman Funeral Home with Rev. William F. Wunder officiating.

Burial was in the Stroudsburg Cemetery. Pallbearers were Barry Tretheway, Brian Farris, Douglas Townsend, Harry Diehl, Pettus Diehl and Robert Diehl.

Fight victim files suit

STROUDSBURG — A complaint in trespass seeking no less than $2,000 and no more than $10,000 was filed in the Monroe County Court of Common Pleas Thursday against William Bisbing, 712 Scott St., Stroudsburg, who is now confined in the Monroe County jail for violation of parole.

The suit was brought by Thomas P. Veety, Stroudsburg R.D. 4, who claims that he was assaulted by Bisbing and suffered the loss of two front teeth, severe lacerations, and has suffered extreme pain as a result of the attack.

Veety is being represented by East Stroudsburg attorney Edwin Krawitz.

EAST STROUDSBURG — More than 300 music lovers packed the East Stroudsburg High School auditorium Thursday night to hear a benefit concert performed by the Curtis String Quartet for the coming Mid-Atlantic Music and Arts Center to be located at Onawa Lodge in Mount Airyhome.

Featured was piano virtuoso Vladimir Sokoloff, who accompanied Jascha Brodsky, violin; Max Arnoff, viola; and Orlando Cole, cellist, in two piano quartets by Mozart and Brahms and a Trio Sonata in D Major by LeClair.

The world-famous Curtis Ensemble will serve as teachers and consultants at the Center this summer and will present a series of six concerts performing every Thursday night in the Big Top.

During intermission, Benjamin Josephson of SWIFTWATER — Students from Scotrun and Pocono Pines have won top honors in the senior class at Pocono Mountain Jr.-Sr. High School, Swiftwater.

Beverly Gail Frantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daylon G. Frantz, of Scotrun, and Barbara Ann Christman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Christman, of Scotrun, were graduates of a nursing course at College Misericordia, Dallas, Pa. Her high school activities include band, four years; basketball manager, three years; field hockey, two years and prom and play committees. She also won the Daughters of American Revolution award.

EAST STROUDSBURG — Price Township supervisors tabled a motion to establish a one per cent earned income tax until a special meeting which will be scheduled.

STROUDSBURG — Rockledge Manor, a 240-acre resort hotel in Canadensis, Price Township, was sold for $83,500 according to a deed filed in the office of the register and recorder in the Monroe County Courthouse Thursday.

Sixteen new members of the East Stroudsburg High School chapter of the National Honor Society were presented with gold pins Thursday night during ceremonies in the high school cafeteria. Ted's Tidbits Four East Stroudsburg State wrestlers have qualified for the Olympic finals to be held next weekend at Ames, Iowa but they may not make the trip.

The boys learned this week that it will cost them about $700 to make the trek. When they qualified for the finals two weeks ago in Virginia they were under the impression that some financial assistance would be provided.

ESSC wrestling coach Red Witman brought the matter to our attention and asked if we knew of possible ways the money could be raised.

Witman did say that some money was collected in the Lehigh Valley Area for boys in that area but he didn't think his boys could get help.

Witman would like to see the boys try and gain a berth on the Olympic team, but like this writer is stumped as to how to go about raising the funds. Anyone with any suggestions, may contact Witman at the school.

The five boys are Gary Cook, Ned Bushong, Tom Best, Rich Schumacher and Tom Balent.

PSSC NOTES—When the ESSC netters defeated Bloomsburg 6-3 recently it was the first time in six years the Warriors didn't win by a shutout.

At least five PSSC players from last year have signed professional football pacts. Bloomsburg's Bob Tucker (Boston); Stan Kurcharski, with the Green Bay Packers; West Chester's Jim Haynie (Minnesota), and Brian Mulhern (San Diego) and Clinton's Jim Alcorn (Cleveland Browns).

Bloomsburg's Dick Lichtel, who played the final five games with a broken thumb and didn't know it, may sign with either the Detroit Lions or the Atlanta Falcons.

The Board of Presidents have turned down the executive committee's request to play baseball, "or any other college sport" on Sunday. The committee's intention was to find another day athletes would not have to miss class because of a sports trip.

Yankee trip

Thirty-seven area baseball fans (there may be three or four Yankee fans among them) are planning a trip to Yankee Stadium May 26 to see the Yankees play the Chicago White Sox.

Joe DiPipi, organizer of the yearly trip, issued a reminder this week that Sunday (May 5) is the deadline for those planning to make the trip. Anyone who has not contacted DiPipi by Sunday will be replaced by one of the 15 on the "Waiting" list.

Gordon, Darr lone winners for Eastburg

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg failed to score a point in the running events Thursday as it dropped a 92-12 decision to Parkland. The Cavs are now 1-6 for the campaign.

The only bright spot for coach Kirby Kiek were Larry Gordon and Dave Darr. Gordon remained unbeaten in the long jump with a leap of 19 feet, one-quarter inch, while Darr won the javelin with a throw of 151 feet, six inches.

Wichita U. placed on probation

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association council placed Wichita, Kan., State University on probation and approved 16 postseason football games for next season before concluding its three-day meeting here Wednesday.

The council also announced Central College of Pella, Iowa, has been restored to full membership after a one-year suspension for "taking part in an un-certified postseason football game."

In addition, it warned coaches who have their own television programs that the rule against using high school athletes on such shows would be tightly enforced.

The council decided to send two representatives to organizational meeting of the proposed U.S. Amateur Wrestling Federation. This is tentatively scheduled for late July or August, probably in Chicago.

The NCAA's executive committee will meet at Lake Tahoe, Calif., Aug. 15-17 and the council at the same spot Aug. 17-19.

Bangor captures relay to tie Nazareth, 52-52

BANGOR — A first place finish in the mile relay earned the Bangor High track team a 52-52 tie with Nazareth Thursday.

Forced to go without Frank Scagliotta for the second straight meet, the Slaters (6-1-1) set one school and three new field records.

Jim Beers broke the school record in the pole vault by clearing 12 feet, two inches. The old record of 12 feet was set in 1963 by Carman Commuante. Kim Bellis set a new field mark in the long jump with a leap of 22 feet, two and three-quarter inches. The old record of 21 feet, 11 inches was held by Scagliotta. Roger Black broke his own record in the first leg of the mile relay with a clocking of 55.1 seconds.

Santiago posts 11th straight victory, 4-1

BOSTON (AP) — Jose Santiago, backed by the slugging of Ken Harrelson and Reggie Smith, posted his third victory of the season and his 11th straight since mid-1967 Thursday in hurling the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 decision over California.

Santiago dazzled the Angels, allowing only three hits and striking out nine.

Harrelson, who has inherited the starting outfield berth vacated by ailing Tony Conigliaro, had three successive hits, driving in two runs, while Smith collected a pair of doubles.

The Red Sox broke a scoreless deadlock in the fourth when Smith lined a double to right and Harrelson scored him with a looping single to center.

The Angels tied the count on a walk, a sacrifice and Paul Sebail's two-out single in the fifth.

Harrelson put Boston in front to stay, leading off the sixth with his first homer, a blast against the wind into the left field screen. Three errors and a sacrifice fly by Russ Gibson provided another run in the inning.

The Red Sox added another run in the seventh on a walk, a fourth California error and Smith's double and then breezed behind Santiago.

The bidding:

3 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	6 NT	Pass

Opening lead — four of diamonds.

This gem was played by Alvin Roth in the national men's pair championship. The slam is difficult to make even with the opponents' cards exposed, but Roth managed the affair without this advantage and wound up with twelve tricks.

He won the diamond lead in dummy with the jack and returned a low spade to his ten. When the finesse succeeded, Roth clashed the king of spades and three more diamond tricks, finishing in dummy with the king.

East, in the meantime, had been forced to discard three hearts, since he could not spare a spade or a club.

Diagnosing the situation perfectly, Roth led a low heart from dummy at this point. He could have led the ace of spades instead to learn whether the suit was divided 3-3, but he was convinced they were divided 4-2.

On the heart East was forced to play the queen, and the king lost to the ace. In the process, dummy's jack became established as a trick.

By this time the original situation had changed drastically. South had started the hand with only nine sure tricks, but, by guessing the spade finesse successfully and establishing a heart, he was now up to eleven tricks. The twelfth trick came soon after, because this had become the position.

West returned a club, won by the king. When dummy then cashed the jack of hearts, East's position became untenable. He could not spare a spade; he could not spare a club. He was squeezed.

Agriculture jobs open in area

STROUDSBURG — Several ideas and opportunities in spare-time agricultural jobs in Monroe County were presented to the recent Technical Action Panel meeting held in the Soil Conservation Service office.

"There are so many enterprises available which people are not aware of but many of these are being successfully done," John Withrow, county agent for Cooperative Extension Service, reported.

Some of these would be: raising goats for milk; cattle for beef; sheep for hot house lambs or wool; fattening swine; rabbits for meat; veal calves; horses for brood mares; heifers for hard replacement; laboratory mice; and guinea pigs, mink, pheasants for meat or for the Game Commission; specializing in the growing of any vegetable; or fruits; also things like bee keeping, Christmas trees, ice fishing.

Opportunities are also in special services like riding stable, boarding house, trail or hay rides, shearing sheep, pruning trees, spraying service; rero-tilling of gardens, lawn care; horse shoeing; housing and meals for hunters.

There are good reasons for spare-time jobs, to give children a farming experience, provide some of the family's food supply, increase family cash income, besides the personal rewards any hobby would bring.

There are factors to overcome, like high costs of production and marketing per unit, lack of experience, letting other activities interfere and the attitude of the individual in planning and managing the enterprise and trying to make it a success.

Other factors must be considered in selecting the spare-time activity, like, personal preference, land and buildings available and capital, labor and marketing.

"Crafts and craft products can also help provide income, take up leisure time and give satisfaction," Joseph Macialek, Penn State Resource Development agent, said.

Secretary of Commerce, Clifford Jones, left, and Robert Shoemaker, Director of Commerce's Travel Bureau, and Daniel Buser, head of the department's advertising and public relations, will lead an in-service training seminar at the Pocono Mountain's 20th annual Hotel and Restaurant Show.

Hotel-Restaurant Show

State plans in-service program

STROUDSBURG — A new State Department of Commerce in-service training program will be one of the features of the 20th annual Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau's Hotel and Restaurant Show at Tamiment-in-the-Poconos Wednesday, May 8.

The program, designed to orientate tourist industry personnel, contains examples of the state's current tourist promotion efforts, a report on the economic impact of tourism, and the acknowledgement of the need to utilize available sources to improve service and communications with tourists.

The audio-visual program will take place at 3 p.m., May 8, and will be one of the highlights of the second day of the two-day event which has a record number of exhibits.

Motion pictures

The one and a half hour session consists of motion pictures, slides on better service and communications, and dialogue dove-tailed together to show the importance of service to the tourist on his trip or vacation to Pennsylvania.

Officials of the four-county area comprising the Pocono Mountains will be invited to attend the program. Representatives of business,

Chambers of Commerce, mayors, county commissioners and other agencies engaged in the tourist industry will join with staff personnel of regional resort, restaurant and attraction enterprises at the session.

Commerce's in-service training program is the climax to Tourist Preparation Month which was proclaimed by Gov. Raymond P. Shafer.

Robert Ahmert, president of the sponsoring PMVB, said, "We hope that all of our membership will take this opportunity to attend this program which can mean so much to the resort industry of the Pocono Mountains."

The Hotel and Restaurant Show will have more than 100 exhibits — an all-time high. It is expected that 6,000 guests will attend the two-day show which officially gets underway Tuesday, May 7, at ribbon-cutting ceremonies at 2 p.m. Prior to the ceremonies a luncheon will be held in the ballroom at Tamiment.

Critical jokes hit Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The meeting hall was stuffy, and 2,999 spectators were snoring.

"There's a spy in this hall. Find him," the Soviet police chief ordered his men.

An alert agent quickly spotted the only spectator who was awake, listening to the dull speech now in its third hour. The agent seized the man and dragged him to headquarters.

"How did you know?" cried the captured spy, who thought he had masqueraded himself as a loyal Communist.

"Simple," the agent said. "Lenin teaches us that our enemy never sleeps. You were the only one awake."

This is the self-critical type of joke that the Russians are laughing at these days—and all except the most dogmatic Communists find such anecdotes hilarious.

It is typical of the new brand of Soviet humor that reveals a talent for self-ridicule and an increasing willingness to make use of it openly.

This tough style of humor thrives in Russia's seemingly bland society, where the government is perhaps the most humorless in the world. Laughter is rare at most official functions and humor is hard to find in the press. In fact Russians consider it a major event when the head of the government, Alexei N. Kosygin, smiles in public.

New look at Soviet show biz

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — "This show is banned," rules the stolid Communist censor. "It smacks of Trotskyism, liberalism, and intellectualism."

The stage director outwits him by having the chorus switch from "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" to a Red revolutionary song. Curvaceous girl dancers suddenly wave little red flags.

This bit from a Russian production by N. Bulgakov, barred from Soviet stages since the roaring 20s, is the current rage of show-loving Prague. It is called "The Purple Island."

First opened in the downtown ABC Theater last December, it had an excitingly rebellious taste. It still draws packed houses, but it has turned into plain fun, for reality has out-paced fiction. What happened in Czechoslovakia during the past few weeks would have seemed utopian had it been presented on stage only six months.

Writers who barely escaped jail for fierce denunciation of the regime are back at their desks. A party critic who was kicked out of the Communist Central committee five years ago uses the official party mouthpiece for a devastatingly critical review of 20 years of Czechoslovak communism. And the public is more or less openly cautioned to distrust the words of their president.

The winds of change are blowing full blast in this country where people once did not dare deviate a fraction from the Kremlin party line. They have been picking up strength ever since reform-minded Alexander Dubcek took the place of old Stalinist Antonin Novotny as head of the party. Dubcek won in January.
